CATH BOY BEHIND IMPALE WAVE?

Rash of Freak Accidents at Area Catholic Schools Puzzle Doctors, Law

STUMPED: Father Paddy O'Phile (right) said, "Boys horse around. They fall on things. Accidents will happen."

Another set of boys have been hospitalized after accidentally falling on sharp objects and injuring their bottoms at area Catholic schools. Church officials said The two boys, whose names were withheld, were on the playground of St. Michael's when they slipped and fell on the exposed bolts and screws of the monkey bar set at St. Michael's.

"We try to take precautions but sometimes, boys will just be boys," chuckled Father Paddy O'Phile of the school.

This is the third time this month in the metro area that boys have injured their behinds, requiring a hospital visit.

Two weeks ago, a boy accidentally slipped in church and impaled himself on a crucifix. Fast acting priests were able to remove the crucifix and bandage the boy before driving him to the hospital.

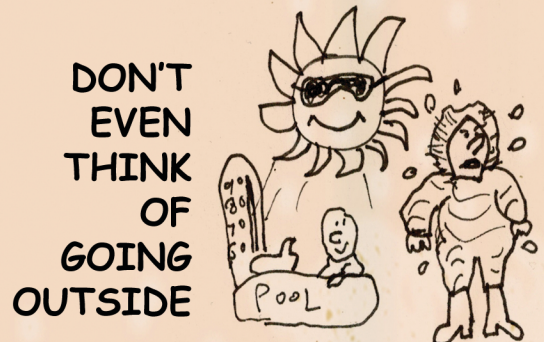

Dr. Shlomo Getz of Barnes-Jewish hospital said, "These are very rare and freak accidents and yet they keep happening. I guess you could say that God works in extremely unusual ways."

Black Man Spotted

A black guy was spotted walking in the Afton area on Monday. He is a suspect in a rash of injuries at Catholic schools, the failure of the Naugles hamburger chain, reduced revenues to small farms, stagflationary economic conditions and the collapse of the American nuclear family. If you have seen this man, please call the crimestoppers hotline.

MAIN STREET 'STREAK'

Nude Girl Runs Amok

Drivers at 2:30 AM last thursday were surprised to see a teenaged girl running down Main Street in her birthday suit. We thought the "streaking" fad had fizzled, but we might be mistaken.

Officer Alex DeLarge said, "She was hyper and babbling about this and that."

The girl had been waitressing at The Ground Round. The manager, John S. Gacy said, "This was all a misunderstanding. Another waitress had accused her of stealing tips, so I called her into my office. She was outraged and began pulling her pockets out, then started disrobing to prove she had no change on her. When I tried to comfort her and diffuse the situation, she misinterpreted events and bolted out of my office stark naked."

The girl, whose name was withheld, was arrested for indecent exposure and disorderly conduct.

"I guess she's not going to be getting any Elk's Club scholarships!" Chuckled Officer DeLarge.

Cold On Rape Hotline

The County Council voted 6-2 to reject funding for a rape Counseling hotline. Representative Ted E. Schmidt said, "To quote the great Grover Cleveland, 'although the people must support the government, the government should not support the people.' We need to balance the budget and besides, this is a nice neighborhood. Things like that don't happen here."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS I'm in high school, working jobs as a waitress to save money for college. One night, the manager called me into his office and told me I was accused of stealing tips. I was outraged, and pulled all of my pockets out to prove I had no change on me. When he still didn't believe me I pulled my dress off and angrily threw my bra at him. He started moving toward me and I realized that this whole thing had been a ruse, that he was the one stealing tips, and it was all some head game to get me to remove my clothes and possibly rape me.

I ran out of the restaurant before he could get his paws on me. Then the cops picked me up and I was the one who was arrested for indecent exposure. My entire future could be ruined. This is an outrage, what should I do?

ANN LANDERS RESPONDS You must quit your job immediately. If you continue to work for this man, you have a geranium in the cranium. It is your responsibility to work for ethical people only. Think of it as advanced credits from the school of hard knocks. Stop it, and seek professional psychiatric counseling..

DEAR ANN LANDERS, Your huge synthetic wig is as phony as your humanitarian concern. In reality, you are a selfish, materialistic, and petty human being. You always said divorce would be the end of society, except when it came to you. You wrote that gay marriage would devastate family values, yet you have been estranged from your own twin sister for 40 years. You are a typical phony who doesn't practice what she preaches. Signed, Truth Hurts.

ANN LANDERS RESPONDS Mind your own damned business. You have bats in the belfry. Seek professional help immediately! Driver, The Ambassador-- and step on it!

THE CONTEMPT BOAT

(regie: Jean Luc Godard, Eric Rohmer)

Cruise boat features jaded French postmodernists who find the romantic ideal of love to be hopelessly bourgeois and mostly bitch at each other for the duration of the show. Nonetheless, the show features plenty of Eric Rohmeresque young teens in skimpy diaphanous bathing costumes, which is okay, because no one on "The Contempt Boat" ever consummates; they just complain about the food, the weather, Pascal's wager, and the size of the meal portions.

Fred Silverman, president of programming for ABC, declared, "I don't understand what these frogs are talking about, all I know is that highbrow gab gives us a license to show tween skin and get away with it."

The French must have very large suitcases, as there are many otherwise pointless scenes of undressing, changing swimsuits and showering. "This merely illustrates the false capitalist concept of choice and by coincidence allows the viewers to gawk at teen veal." Said Jean Jaques Bidet, a writer on the show.

"This is not jiggle TV" Silverman protested. "The rib balloons on these French nymphets are far too small and pert to jiggle."

“Feed the public little more than rural comedies, fast-moving detective dramas and, later, sexy dolls. No old people; the emphasis was on youth. No domestic servants, the mass audience wouldn't identify with maids. No serious problems to cope with. Every script had to be full of action. No physical infirmities.”
